

Joey Land of Canaan

ما في شي اسمو فلسطين، لازم جيلنا يحكي الحقيقة ويواجه فيها الكذب..

تاريخيا هذه الارض هي ارض كنعان وكنعان هو ابن مدينة جبيل اللبنانية من عائلة
الكبيريم الكنعانية الفينيقية اللبنانية..
اليهود والفلسطة دخلوا كمستوطنين..
اليهود يعترفون بذلك في العهد القديم ولكن الفلسطة لا يعترفون..
الفلسطة اساساً كانوا ساكنين باليهودية اي غزة اليوم الى الاردن اللي بنى فيها الاردنيون
ولاية كبرت فتحولت الى مملكة احتلوها وسموها الاردن واصبح الفلسطة فيها لاجئين..
اورشليم بناها ملكيصادق ابن صيدون اللبنانية واسمها اورشليم مش القدس..
الجليل كان لبنانيا الى ان تم سلخه في اتفاقية سايكس بيكوا لضمه الى اسرائيل..
المسيح ليس فلسطيني هو من ام لبنانية وولد في الجليل الكنعانية وكان يتكلم الكنعانية
اللبنانية (وليس ما يسمى بالآرامية) وهو ليس فلسطيني..
هو اصلا لم يذكر فلسطين ولا مرة ولا حتى خاطب الفلسطة ولا مرة واحدة..
حتى القران لم يأت على ذكر لا الفلسطينيين ولا فلسطين مع انه ذكر اسرائيل ٥٢ مرة..
ليكن بعلمكم هم يسرقون الهوية اللبنانية الفكرية.. يقلدون التراث اللبناني بأغانيه ورقص
الدبكة ثم يقومون بنشر الاكاذيب مدعين ان هذا التراث هو تراث مشترك معهم

REPLY:

Hey! Allow me to thank you again for the tags to such issues! Always a pleasure! Indeed we have been lied to a lot, although not everything is true in this short article. I will make as sort as possible yet understandable:

- 1) The Torah is a very precious documentation, but it clashes sometimes with facts.
- 2) The Land of Canaan extended up to current Homs city (Emessa), Hamath (Hama) and Idlib districts, to east of Aleppo, including the coasts, almost to Iskenderun.
- 3) There is no evidence of a man called Canaan: Canaan means yalleh Kana3 aw Kann, a word used in Lebanese nowadays: “l waja3 ma kann” or “kne3” meaning jmad, rou2, though not used in all Lebanese regions. Nor was he from Byblos in most religious documents where he mentioned.
- 4) Indeed, the Hebrews, who were Bedouins from Jordan (from Irak as per the Torah), genetically Canaanites and imbued by Canaanite culture, relocated to “later Palestine” and fought of Canaanites (the civilizationally Canaanites) to their kins in Lebanon. Canaanites had previously lost “later Syrian” territory except Tartous / Arwad, thus Canaanites and “Lebanon” became a parallel entity.

5) Philistins from Sinai desert filled the gap in Gaza and the area down there, but vanished later. Their name was extrapolated to the whole “Palestine as we know it” since 500 BC with Herodotus. This same land being called Israel by the Hebrews, as per the name of their kingdoms, that name being a second name for Isaac son of Abraham. They were never in Jordan. And there was no Jordanian People, but Amorites in western Jordan, who differentiated into 3 small Peoples (Edomites, Moabites and Ammonites), and were later replaced by Nabateans, and Arabs in eastern Jordan and the rest of the Syrian / Iraki / Arab desert. There are no historical Jordanians in relation with current “administrative” Jordanians.

6) Current Palestinians are not descendants of Philistins (who, we repeat, left no trace). They are in small portion some Jews who became Christians, but mostly Nabateans from Jordan whom the Romans brought to Palestine after the Jews were lastly kicked-out in AD 135 (Bar Kokkaba revolt), to fill the gap. Those were Pagans who Christianized, and thus they became known as Palestinians by the name of the land as used by the West, and most of them became Muslim since the Muslim occupation in AD ~ 640. Genetics study confirm that Palestinians nowadays are the only coastal people who have inland genes (H1 haplotype).

7) Melchizedek was not a Sidonian. The Torah says no one knows his origin, he has existed since eternity. There is no scientific evidence for him. He was the highest priest and king of Jerusalem (not necessary that he built it); he was a Canaanite and so was Jerusalem, purely Canaanite, until 1000 BC when they had to sell and leave to Lebanon, after all other Canaanites had been expelled forcefully by the Hebrews / Jews / Israelites in 1300 BC.

8) Galilee was not Lebanese. Here is a point: historical Lebanon ends up just below Tyre (cannot go through the details now); it was part of Canaan, and its middle third; the rest to the south was sure part of Canaan, then was taken by the Jews ~ 1300 BC. Then Solomon gave to Hiram king of Tyre roughly what is today southern “Jabal Amel”, in ~ 950 BC. So obviously the rest of Galilee was never Lebanese: it was Canaanite (Lebanon is a land, Canaanite is a people). Some Lebanese had lands there in 1920 that ended up in “Palestine”.

9) Mary mother of Jesus was a Hebrew, and Hebrew names were Canaanite: The Hebrews as I said splintered from Canaanites with a religion and a sharia and formed a closed isolated entity with their own language derived from Canaanite; but names and other aspects not dictated by sharia remained Canaanite (analogy with Islam: Mohammad, Ali, Omar... are 4000 year - old Canaanite names, you can check Canaanite dictionaries, because Islam also originated within the Land of Canaan and in its periphery, in Hejaz). But no she was not Lebanese. Lebanon was a geographical entity, not a people. Up till now, scientifically (biologically and sociologically) no one is Lebanese. After the Muslim invasion, the Canaanites (confined to Lebanon since 1190 BC) who remained free in Mount Lebanon (mainly Maronites, with few Roums) adopted the name “Lebanese”, based on geography, to distinguish themselves from the Islamic State besieging them; that was in AD 676. But they remain scientifically Canaanites. In 1920, Christians and Muslims on the land of Lebanon became administratively “Lebanese”, since they were absorbed in the Lebanese Republic. But again, that remains administrative, since they retain their Canaanite identity on one hand, and their Muslim identity on the other.

10) Jesus's "mother" tongue was Hebrew, but it was only used inside the temple, since Babylonian times. Jews spoke Canaanite on a daily basis, forced by the Babylonians then Persians, and that continued into Roman times, and up till 1948. Indeed, "Aramaic" is just a Hebrew name for Canaanite; all modern schools of linguistics have ensured that since 2002, but it needs time to be translated into textbooks: true Aramaic existed for a short time (1200 – 500 BC) and is extinct.

11) It is normal nowadays to assume what is "truly" Lebanese (and not Arab) as Canaanite (or say Phoenician, the Greek name for them), since Canaanites were confined to Lebanon (Tartous) and adopted the name Lebanese, and clung to it for 1300 years, and ended up attributing that name for the Republic they created in 1920, forcing, truth be said, the Muslim to join them.

12) Of note, Paul re-attached Jesus theologically to Melkisadeq, hence attached the founder of Christianity to the Canaanite religion which we seemingly call pagan erroneously, since Melkisadeq's god (as all Canaanites back then and no one but them) was no one but El (Eel) Alion, meaning in Arabic Allah al 3aliy, khaleq assamawat wal ard (refer to Genesis)... and thus he (Paul) bypassed all the Jewish religion, which anyway Jesus had considered unconform, through its sharia considered to be applicable word for word, to God's (and his) teachings. And since Hebrews existed solely on the basis of a new religion with Abraham who splintered off Melkisadeq, they should have remained Canaanites... so we can say up till here that Jesus was more culturally Canaanite than Hebrew, and not Hebrew as identity, because he refused their sharia, and lived his daily life (spoken / written language, food, habits) what Hebrews had in common with Canaanites. Even the offering of bread and wine was a Canaanite custom since at least 1500BC (refer to Louvre museum). And since religion is part of a culture (if said religion is not accompanied by a sharia _ which would be a new separate culture_, then Jesus was a Canaanite, only not adopting their religion; the rest, spoken language, written language, food, habits... As a conclusion, He was born among the Jews and his mission was to rectify their aberrancies through a new religion, for them as well as for Canaanites and all Peoples, with new morality laws... i'll stop here...